Ebenezer Woodward

With hearts of joy, sing we a song
Woodward, to thee,
For worthy art thou of acclaim.
For miles around there doth resound
Echoes of thy fame,
Long live thy glorious name,
Long live thy glorius name.
Oh Woodward, dear Woodward
Hail to thee, Oh Woodward, Beloved.

Oh, Woodward, dear forever,
Thy loyal daughters here,
Have listened to thy teachings
For many a joyous year.
Long may you live to guide us
In wisdom's paths so true.
We sing the highest praises,
Dear Woodward, to you.

For understanding our problems as no one else could; for giving us encouragement when we needed it most; for bestowing on us their infinite patience; for sacrificing so much that we might be happy; for willingly giving us unfailing advice; for trying so hard to make the pains and trials of growing up easier for us; for having constant faith no matter what we do; and most of all, for giving us their love; the 1960 Wood Chips' Staff dedicates the '60 Wood Chips to the parents of the senior class.

Dedication

To Our Principal

Miss Katherine Bacon

We can not measure nor justly express the deep gratitude we owe to you, Miss Bacon. For all the guidance, understanding, and faith that you have unceasingly given us, for the anxieties that you have suffered on our behalf, for the priceless preparation to help us successfully meet life, and even for the discipline which we often needed, we offer our heartfelt thanks.

Class History

At times it seemed that the obstacles we faced were insurmountable and our goals were unattainable, but we have reached the final goal that we determined to attain when we entered Woodward School for Girls six long years ago. There were then twenty-two of us who entered the school for the first time.

Our first indoctrination into the Woodward family was the traditional initiation, which we somehow managed to endure, no thanks to our terrifying seniors. We gave our first worthy contribution to the school, "The Nut Club," with membership open to all. Much to our dismay, the response was not overwhelming. It was at this time, however, that Susan Holland, our first class president, brought our attention to the fact that we had an empty treasury, and we thus began our first class project of selling wallets. This was a tremendous success. We sold six.

The rest of the year passed quietly with our first traditional Father and Daughter Banquet, Founder's Night, the school play, Little Women, a Gym Meet, and finally, the graduation of those "terrifying seniors."

We returned in September as what we thought were sophisticated eighth graders. Actually, the only ones we fooled were ourselves. Our biggest thrill was that we no longer had to participate in that dreaded kitchen duty. Our new president, Joyce Kaplan, started us on our financial success with an "unlimited" supply of rainhats to sell. "Unlimited" because our homeroom teacher, Mrs. Hall, had plainly decreed that these rainhats must all be sold before we could undertake a new project. Consequently, we did not have a new project that year. In fact, if you would like to purchase a rainhat, we still have some in the senior room.

That year the Junior Dramatic Club presented The Ghost in the Green Gown, in which most of us took part. In spite of a major catastrophe, by which part of the play was omitted, it was a tremendous success. Toward the end of the year, we put on a "Step-Up-Day" Program entitled "Spooks." It signified our entrance into the upperschool. Graduation made it official.

As freshmen we took over Mrs. Leighton's homeroom and elected Marilyn Yorke as our president. Upon her suggestion we held a Christmas party at the Coddington School for the mentally retarded children. Even Santa Claus, who by some strange coincidence resembled Joyce Kaplan, made an appearance. Our first project that year was selling a folding pair of scissors in a red plastic case. On the front of the case was the well known expression, "Experience is the best teacher." How well we learned this lesson through our futile efforts to sell them. In the spring we held our first fair, which was a success, rewarding as well as financial. As freshmen we adopted a new classmate, Margaret McGillicuddy. She had been left behind by the class of 1956, and we readily took her under our wings. Then, with fond farewells to the seniors, we became sophomores.

When we returned the next fall, our new president, Eileen Hunter, quickly settled us down to the task of making a fortune. Her novel idea was to sell Avon Products. Because business was booming, our hopes were high on reaching Bermuda. We even started to bring in picturesque catalogues. On Founder's Night we were proud to learn that three of our classmates, Susan Holland, Eileen Hunter, and Judy Swartz, had been elected to the National Honor Society. To add to this achievement, as members of the Maroon team, we finally won the Gym Meet after three years of defeat. After a tearful graduation in which we said good-bye to our big sisters, we finally became juniors.

As juniors we continued our financial success under the leadership of our president, Judy Swartz, repeating the Avon project and our spring fair. Because of the untidy appearance of our room and the repeated warnings of Miss Bacon, Mrs. Hill informed us that we would have to set up a schedule of two housekeepers a week. Somehow we always managed to disappear when our turn came. Our thoughts had turned to more important things, such as getting our licenses. We even originated a Junior Speed Demon List. "Pedestrians, Beware." Founder's Night brought the election of three more of our classmates to National Honor Society: Carolyn Jenks, Carol Nicholson, and Elayne Pearlstein. A highlight of that year was the school play, I Remember Mama, in which many juniors took part. In the spring we repeated our last year's triumph by being victorious over the Grey Team on Field Day. Then, at last, graduation arrived. As reluctant as we were to see the seniors leave, we were thrilled by the fact that we had finally become the long-anticipated "mighty seniors."

We returned the next fall to take over he Senior Room. In spite of the fact that we received incessant protests from Mrs. Millard because our noisy discussions were disturbing her classes, we spent many of our happiest moments there. Those informative sixth period studies were a benefit to all. With Anne Salvucci as president, we undertook the task of deciding how to spend our huge treasury, amounting to over one thousand dollars, the largest any senior class had ever had.

Our many problems of this year were met by the most disagreeing class Miss Hurlbert had ever encountered. How she ever put up with our heated arguments is beyond us. The largest problem to solve was that of our class trip. Our long-hoped-for trip to Bermuda seemed almost a reality when the reservations were made, only to be canceled the next day. Again our class was at bitter odds. After much disagreement, we finally decided on New York for our class trip. Futher problems were caused by our Yearbook, the Prom, class projects, and the dilemma of getting accepted to college. At our last Father and Daughter Banquet, we were pleased to learn that Carol Nicholson had won the Betty Crocker Homemaker Award.

Although we are looking forward to Founder's Night, the Gym Meet, the Pops Concert, and our final goal, graduation, we sadly realize that this will be the last time we can participate in these memorable traditions. We can never again recapture those carefree years. The song has ended, but the melody lingers on.

Class Will

We, the Graduating Class of 1960 of Woodward School for Girls, being of fifteen worn out minds after six years of mental toil, do hereby make, publish, and declare this, our last will and testament. Since we will not long remain in these hallowed halls of learning, we hope that our successors will benefit from the mementoes of our experience.

First, we constitute and appoint "Vensus" to be the executrix of this, our last Will and Testament, and instruct her to carry out all that we bequeath.

MISS BACON—A Senior Class which appreciates Milton's poetry.
MISS HURLBERT—An agreeable class that sticks to its FIRST vote.
MRS. MILLARD—A Senior Math Class of more than six girls.
MRS. STOVOLD—An appearance on the Voice of Firestone.
MISS DYAS—"Support."
MISS COLE—Our regrets that she couldn't be at Woodward during our senior year.
MRS. TATTRIE—Our hopes for a little girl so she can attend Woodward.
MRS. HILL—Willing housekeepers.
MRS. SCHUERFELD—Seniors that agree with her choice of graduation music.
MRS. FAUST—Full attendance at Gym Meet rehearsals.
MRS. LEIGHTON—A play pen strong enough to keep Ricky in.
MRS. HALLORAN—A constant supply of tea and aspirin.
MRS. LENNON—Girls who put covers back on the typewriters.
MR. MAC—Our thanks for warning us when the Senior Room would be checked.

To the Woodward Student Body, we, the undersigned, devise and donate the following items:

RHODA COOPERSTEIN leaves—Ethel Sherman 4 Roses.
LOIS ECKBLOM leaves—Her long white formal gloves to Mary Dill.
PENNY ERIKSON leaves—Her athletic abilities to underclassmen.
SUSAN HOLLAND leaves—Her regrets?? for not taking fourth year Latin.
EILEEN HUNTER leaves—A dust cloth for the library to future National Honor Society members.

Class Prophecy

In 1971 I decided to return to the scene of my school day haunts. As it was quite a distance back to Woodward, I planned to take a plane trip, my first since that memorable class trip. Upon making reservations with Trans World Airlines, I discovered that Jackie Sweeney, our aviation enthusiast, was secretary to the President of this Airline.

The long awaited day finally arrived, and as I boarded the plane, I was greeted by a pretty, blonde stewardess, who turned out to be none other than Eileen Hunter. Catching up on all the latest gossip, I soon learned that Carol Nicholson was now superintendent of nurses at the Prince Edward Island Hospital.

Eileen also said that she had visited with Corinne Kelley after an overseas flight assignment to Germany. Corinne was happily teaching the children of our Army Corps.

One of the visits I made last year was to the Smith Dental Clinic where Judy Swartz and Rhoda Cooperstein, two noted dental hygienists, have worked on thousands of patients, and have even invented a new method of cleaning teeth. When I made my appointment at the clinic, I was capably received by Lillian Mancini, an experienced secretary to two of the dentists.

Also in this business district is the well known department store, Saks of Fifth Avenue. The head buyer in the women's clothing department is our own Carolyn Jenks. Her flair for fashions is evident by the popularity of her department.

In the business office of this same store, I encountered Lois Eckblom, now secretary to its vice president. I did not disturb her, however, as she was busy taking dictation while sitting on her boss's lap.

A few months ago, during my tour of a recently built mental hospital, I visited with Susan Holland and Sandra Rosenberg. They are sharing a room there—as psychologists, of course—where they are doing a remarkable job.

As one of the passengers required Eileen's assistance, I was left alone to read my newspaper. In bold print stared the headline "Gail Sherriff, Atomic Physicist, Invents New Formula." I was not surprised as Gail had always been dedicated to science.

Under "Best Bet for the Evening" on the TV page, I read that Elayne Pearlstein's coast-to-coast television show, teaching French and mathematics, would make its debut. I hoped I would have a chance to watch it.

On the sports page I was thrilled to learn that Penny Erikson had just won the Olympic Gold Medal for cross-country skiing. She was pictured with her equally famous husband, who had also won a gold medal for the United States.

Having reached my destination, I descended from the plane. From the airport I went directly to the school, where I was greeted by Anne Salvucci, a new member of the faculty. She had recently left her post as Dean of a men's college. Through her, our senior class president, the traditions of the Class of 1960 had returned to Woodward.
